During this hands-on, results-orientated workshop, participants will define effective as well as ineffective presentation practices. Outcomes of this session are: increased self-awareness of how information is presented, experiment with proven, effective delivery methods, and learn self-management tips to control internal self-talk which interferes during presentations.

Techniques will be demonstrated and shared, and participants are encouraged to experiment to improve during the workshop. Keri Stewart, with Results 4 Business, is an interactive facilitator who shares her presentation knowledge and expertise using multi-layered techniques. She has 13 years of experience in coaching, training, and developing interpersonal skills. Her sessions are conversational, humorous and fun!
